Federally funded and sponsored by the University of Oregon, the High School Equivalency Program is a multicultural, bilingual, alternative education program for migrant and seasonal farm workers. The program offers services to students with a wide range of academic and language skills and provides instruction in social, academic, and critical-thinking skills necessary to pass the general educational development (GED) test and to be placed in college, job training, or employment. The program office is open weekdays from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

McNair Scholars Program

The McNair Scholars Program assists qualifying undergraduates in using the rich resources of the university to prepare for the challenges of graduate study leading to PhD degrees. Eligible students (low-income, first-generation, or underrepresented ethnic group members) receive academic and financial advising, tutoring, and paid research internships with faculty mentors.

In addition, through seminars and individual conferences, students research and select graduate schools, prepare for the Graduate Record Examination, conduct research, write and edit academic papers, and participate in scholarly presentations. The program also provides funding to help participants complete their undergraduate programs and to travel to conferences or visit prospective graduate schools. Supported by a federal Trio grant, the McNair Scholars Program is part of the University Teaching and Learning Center.

Pathway Oregon

The University of Oregon is committed to making a university education affordable for lower-income Oregonians by promising to cover their tuition and fees for four years while they earn their undergraduate degrees. To help students achieve their academic goals and reduce their reliance on student loans, Pathway Oregon advisors help students develop goals, select majors, plan course loads, understand their financial aid packages, and increase their awareness of other campus resources. Eligibility is determined by the Office of Student Financial Aid and Scholarships.

Speech-Language-Hearing Center

The Speech-Language-Hearing Center is part of the Communication Disorders and Sciences program at the College of Education. Graduate student clinicians, under the supervision of licensed clinical faculty members, provide high-quality services to individuals with speech, language, cognitive, and hearing disorders. Services include diagnostic evaluations and individual and group therapy to people of all ages and cultural backgrounds. The center provides community outreach and serves as a local, state, and national resource for innovative clinical service and research.

Student Support Services

Student Support Services offers an integrated program of resources—tutoring, academic and financial advising, noncredit workshops, credit courses, and personal counseling—to students who meet qualifying criteria, who are committed to earning bachelor's degrees, and who could benefit from program services to reach their academic goals.

Funded by a federal Trio grant, Student Support Services provides support to students who have a variety of skills and challenges, from those experiencing significant academic difficulties to others planning to attend graduate or professional schools. Eligibility is determined by parents' educational levels, financial situations, disability factors, and academic need. Student Support Services, located in the University Teaching and Learning Center, is open weekdays, 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Veterans Affairs

Susan M. Eveland, University Registrar

The Yamada Language Center is a language and technology center that serves the university community with teaching and learning tools for more than thirty foreign languages. The center is an active partner with the university's language departments, and is home to two programs that focus on less commonly taught languages: the World Languages Academy and the Self-Study Language Program.

The center provides support services to training programs for teachers of second languages and English as a second language. As a research unit, the center brings together faculty members in second-language instruction, education, and related fields to work on individual and collaborative projects in second-language acquisition, teaching methodology, and the development of audio, video, and software instructional media. The center hosts workshops and seminars on topics related to second-language acquisition and instruction.

The center has an extensive collection of audio-video media and computer software, much of it located on the Virtual Language Lab, an online language-learning tool. The center's lounge is open for group work and presentation practice, and also has reading material in a variety of languages.
