Classics (MA)

The Department of Classics currently offers the master of arts (MA) in classics with a focus on ancient languages and literatures. Students may focus their coursework on Greek, Latin, or Greek and Latin. In addition, the department offers a master of arts degree with a focus on classical archaeology and material culture.

Programs of study are arranged in consultation with two advisors, at least one of whom is a member of the Department of Classics, and comprise graduate courses selected from Anthropology (subject code ANTH), art history (ARH), Classics (CLAS), English (ENG), Latin (LAT), Greek (GRK), History (HIST), Philosophy (PHIL), and Religious Studies (REL).

Program's Admission Requirements

Please visit the program's website (https://cas.uoregon.edu/classics/apply/graduate-admissions/).

Students earning a MA in Classics will be expected to demonstrate the following learning outcomes with proportionate emphasis given to the outcomes focused on the particular content area of the chosen concentration in Classics (Language and Literature; Classical Archaeology and Material Culture):

Program Learning Outcomes

Upon successful completion of this program, students will be able to:

- Advanced proficiency in Latin and/or Greek, including competencies in reading and translating, and a socio-linguistic understanding of the language(s).
- Advanced understanding of the archaeology and material culture of Ancient Greek and Roman civilizations; the development of practical and analytical skills that allow students to critically interpret disparate bodies of material evidence, as well as to recognize and construct well-reasoned interpretations of ancient material culture.
- Advanced understanding of literature, art, and other artifacts from the cultures of the Greco-Roman world, and the capacity to situate them in their sociohistorical context, to identify, interpret, and discuss them, and to describe their later influence.
- Proficiency in a modern European language, which is a major carrier of secondary literature and research, usually French or German.
- Ability to write research papers, requiring advanced knowledge of a range of bibliographic resources.
