Food Studies Minor

The minor in food studies gives students the opportunity to learn more about food and its central place in the human experience. Students take courses in a wide variety of disciplines, such as anthropology, history, environmental science, and human physiology. They also gain practical experience outside the classroom. Because food itself plays such a central role in the life and well-being of communities, the food studies minor promotes students' civic engagement.

Program's Admission Requirements

Please visit the program's website (https://foodstudies.uoregon.edu/people/undergraduate-minor-in-food-studies/).

Minor in Food Studies

Code	Title	Credits
Foundational Courses
ENVS 225	Introduction to Food Studies	4
ANTH 220	Introduction to Nutritional Anthropology	4
or ANTH 248	Archaeology of Wild Foods
or HPHY 105	Principles of Nutrition
HIST 215	Food in World History	4
or HUM 245	Food, Art, and Literature
or PHIL 220	Food Ethics
Elective Courses		8
ANTH 110	Introduction to Traditional Ecological Knowledge
ANTH 248	Archaeology of Wild Foods
ANTH 329	Immigration and Farmworkers
ANTH 330	Hunters and Gatherers
ANTH 341	Food Origins
ANTH 365	Food and Culture
ITAL 306	La cultura culinaria
LA 390	Urban Farm
RL 151	Mediterranean Foodways
Capstone Seminar		4
ASIA 425	Asian Foodways
EDST 450	Food and Schools
ENVS 467	Sustainable Agriculture
FLR 415	Folklore and Foodways
GEOG 468	Contemporary Food Systems
LA 429	Civic Agriculture
SOC 416	Issues in Environmental Sociology [Topic]
Total Credits		24

Additional Requirements

- The minor requires 24 graded credits (6 courses) from approved courses, at least twelve of which must be upper-division courses.
- Letter grades of C- or better must be earned in all courses applied to the minor.
- Students can count up to two upper-division courses from their major department.
- Students are required to take at least one 400-level course or capstone seminar.
- No more than three courses with the same subject heading will count for the minor (including ENVS).
- Food-related UO Study Abroad courses apply to the minor. Programs | Global Education Oregon (uoregon.edu) (https://geo.uoregon.edu/programs/)