Business Law (LLM)

The Business Law track in the LLM program at the University of Oregon School of Law is designed for students who want to specialize in business law and gain a deeper understanding of the legal framework that governs businesses in the United States. The program is intended to provide students with the knowledge and skills they need to advise clients on a wide range of legal issues that arise in the context of business.

The program consists of a series of courses that cover various areas of business law, including corporate law, securities regulation, commercial transactions, and bankruptcy.

In addition to the required courses, students have the opportunity to take electives in a wide range of subjects, including tax law, intellectual property, and international business transactions.

Program Learning Outcomes

Upon successful completion of this program, students will be able to:

- Demonstrate the knowledge and ability necessary to practice substantive and procedural law and understand the dynamic processes through which law is created, developed, and changed by completing an organized program of courses in a selected specialization.
- Employ sound and articulate legal reasoning to identify, research, and analyze legal problems.
- Communicate effectively with clients, decision-makers, and other relevant stakeholders.
- Recognize the responsibility of lawyers to serve as informed and professional leaders.
- Appreciate the critical role that lawyers play in ensuring meaningful access to the legal system, promoting the just application of its laws, and serving their clients and the community.
- Learn how lawyers work together by demonstrating team lawyering skills, managing conflict, and forging relationships.
